

DAVID SCHUMANN

Artist Illustrator Muralist

ILLUSTRATIONS

Birds, reptiles and wild animals of the American West

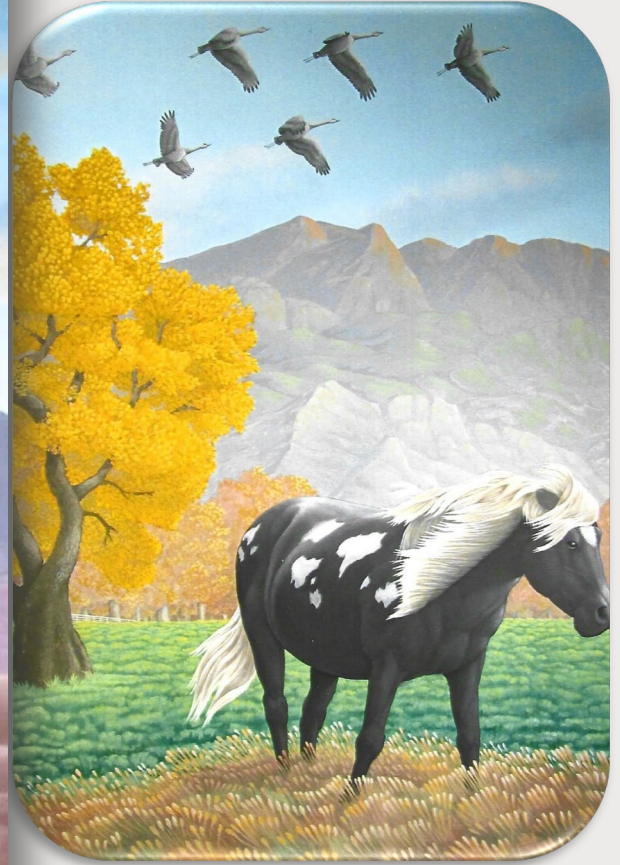

ILLUSTRATIONS

Birds, reptiles and wild animals of the American West

ILLUSTRATIONS

Plants, trees and mountains of the Southwestern landscape

ILLUSTRATIONS

People, cultures and traditions

ILLUSTRATIONS

Vintage American cars and roadways

1938 P·A·C·K·A·R·D E·I·G·H·T

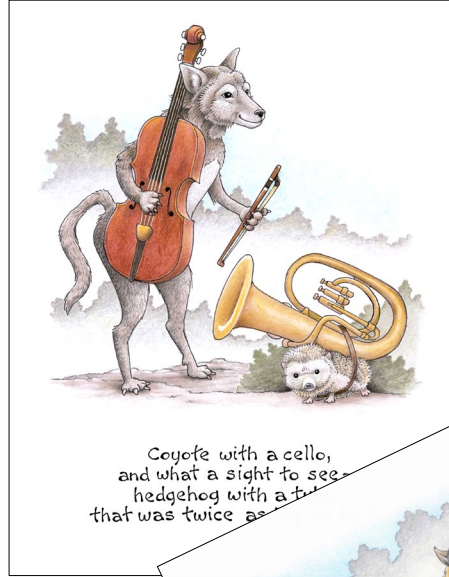

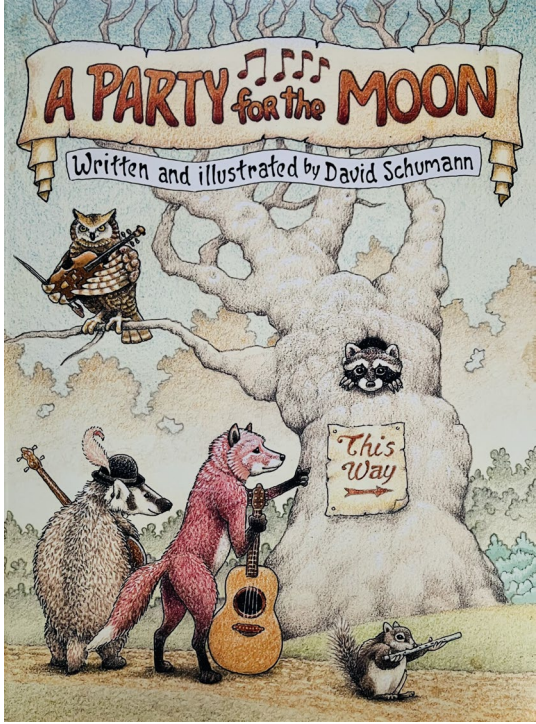

MURALS

Commercial and residential custom art

AUTHOR & ILLUSTRATOR

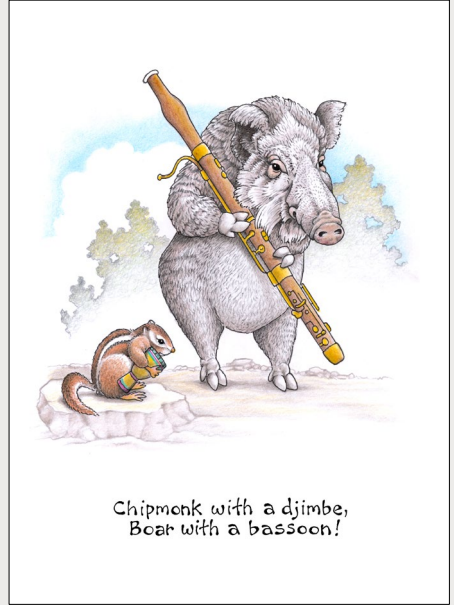

24-page children's book self published in 2020.
Features hand-lettered text, original story and illustrations.

Coyote with a cello,
and what a sight to see,
hedgehog with a tuba
that was twice as big as me!

Written and illustrated by
David Schumann

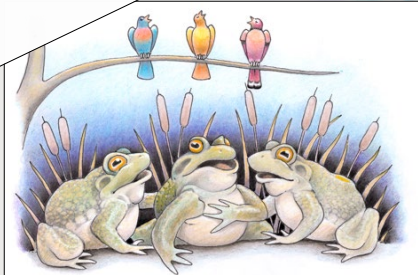

Chipmunk with a djembe,
Bear with a bassoon!

All of the musicians were about to head for home with all of their harmonicas, their flutes and saxophones.

Saxophones and trumpets castanets and drums baritones and tenors-can you play or sing? Then come!
Come to Luna Island
across the wide lagoon,
the setting for the evening-
a party for the moon!

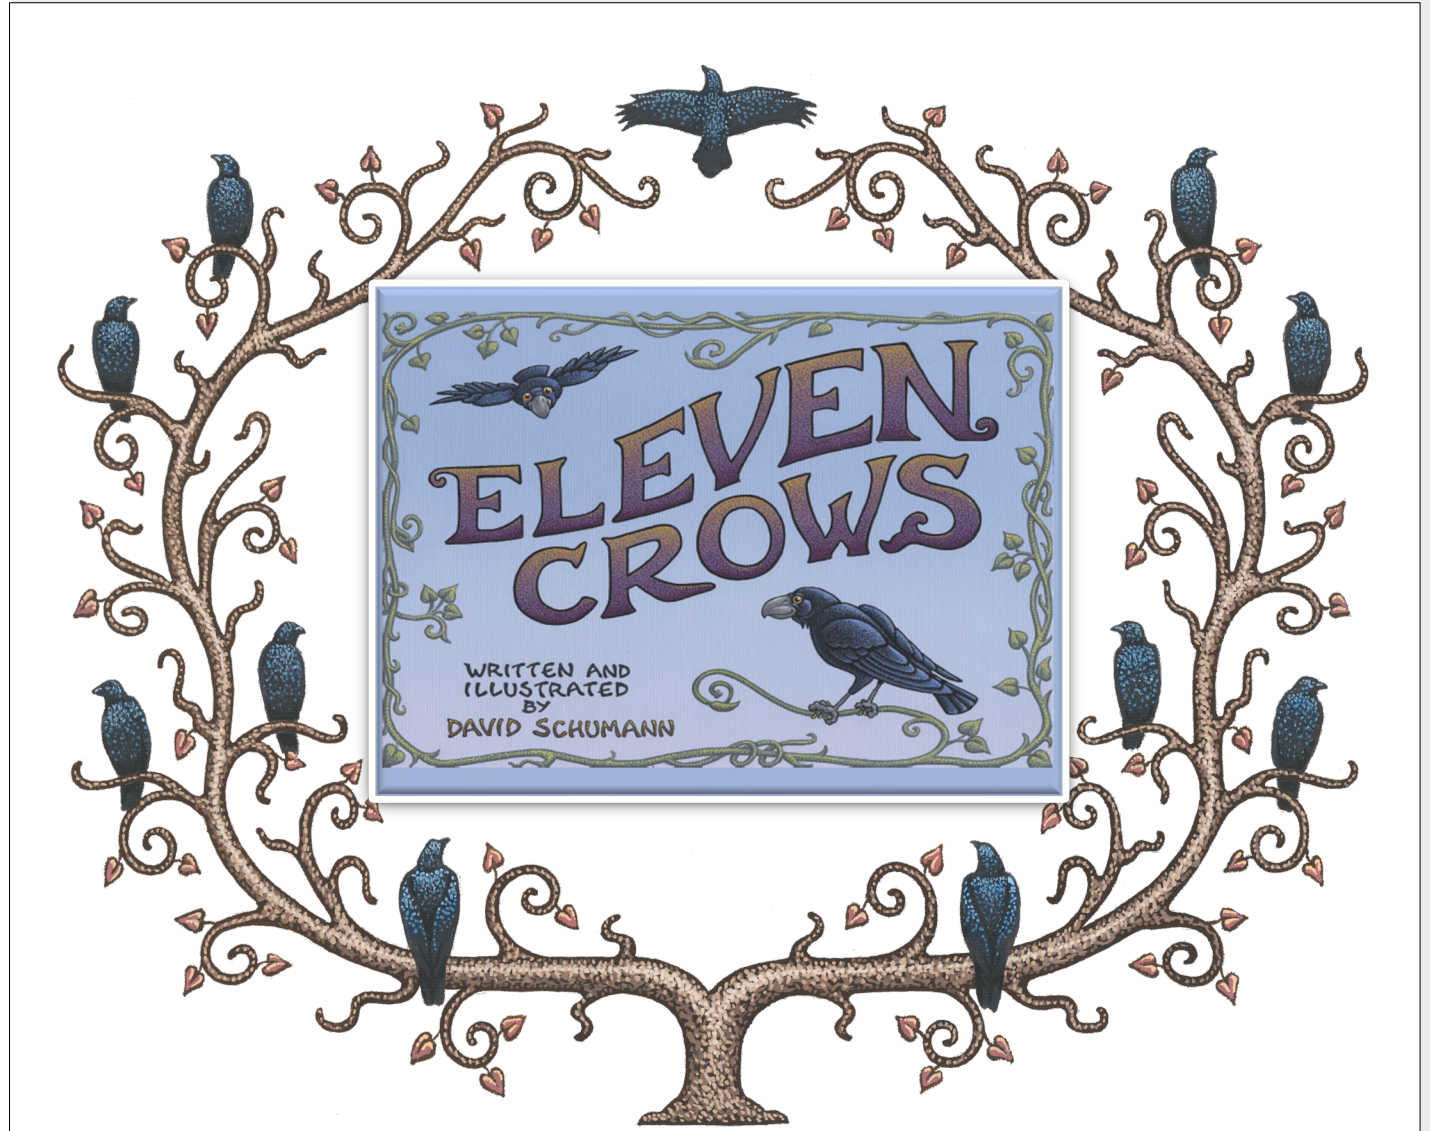

The call was for musicians
one summer night in June...
it was an invitation,
a party for the moon!

"I expect to see you all here again,
same time next year!"

AUTHOR & ILLUSTRATOR

24-page children's book self published in 2021.
Features hand-lettered text, original story and illustrations.

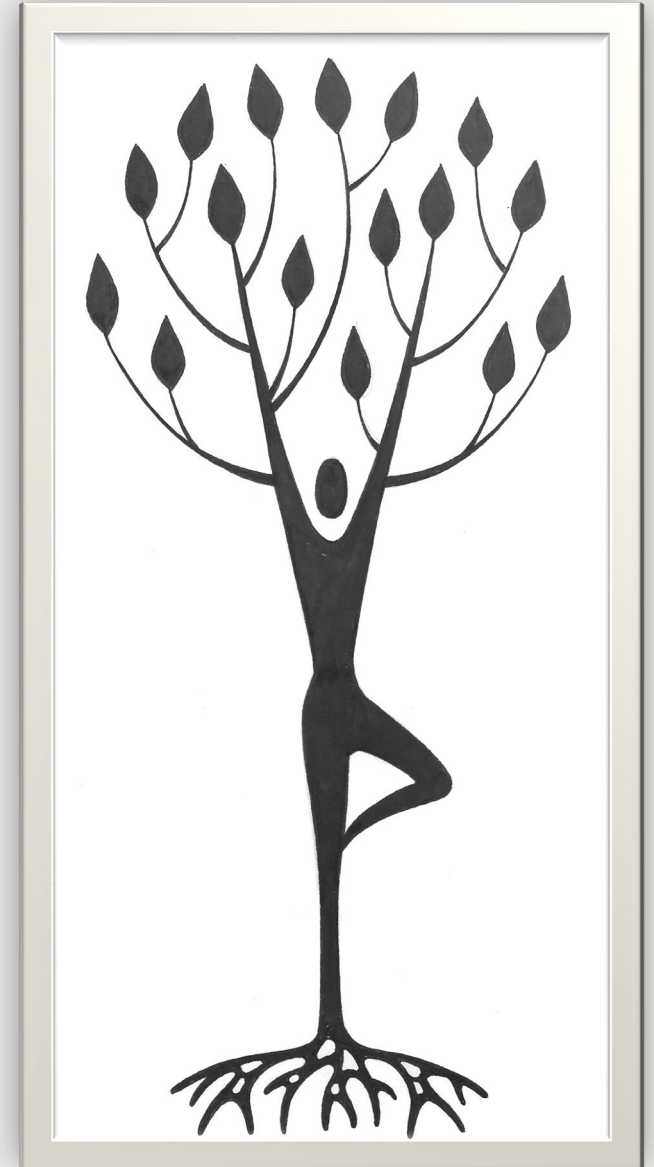

GRAPHIC ART

Colored and Black/White Logos and Designs

Painted Sky stories

PEN & INK

Black/White Art and Designs

CARTOONS

Art and humor

About David Schumann—Artist, Illustrator, Author, Musician, Songwriter, Photographer

A modern-day renaissance man and life-long creative, David Schumann is now turning his energies to writing and illustrating delightful children’s books. His style is to illustrate his rhyming stories with whimsical pictures and hand-drawn letters that are equally as original and charming. His animals in A Party for the Moon, are clever and cool musicians; his birds in Eleven Crows, are funny and fanciful as they fly from page to page.

David says he lived an idyllic childhood roaming the woods and streams of rural New Jersey photographing and sketching wildlife and landscapes. He came of age in the 1970s hitchhiking through the US and Canada on adventures that took him to California and finally brought him to New Mexico where he met his artist wife, Tina, of fifty plus years. He and Tina and their two children lived a pioneer lifestyle on the edge of a national forest raising chickens, goats, and running with the horses.

Along the way, he taught himself how to play the guitar, paint, write songs, become a fine artist, and to create award-winning murals. Today, David can often be seen performing with his band, “Odd Dog” where he is lead singer, guitarist, and songwriter. With the band, he has recorded three albums of original music. David and Tina now share a home in the Sandia Mountains with their two cats and dog, “Roux.” His 3 great-grandchildren continue to inspire his children’s books.